

A CONVERSATION BEFORE A COMPANY

Ask Me Anything.

A small book about a name — how we found it, what it means,
and how to hold it in the world.

Before A.M.A, we lived with six other names.

Each one taught us something about who we are — and who we weren't. We're keeping the shortlist here on purpose. The name we chose is stronger for the ones we didn't.

Aaram

01

From Sanskrit — a sense of calm, rest, and taking a breath.

Marg

02

A path. A journey. A way forward. Short, meaningful, and rooted in purpose.

Pivot

03

A sharp turn, a complete reset. We liked the energy — but it felt like starting over, not building forward.

Multiply

04

Growth-focused, expansive, ambitious. But it felt too corporate. Too expected.

Minus One

05

Subtracting complexity. Adding clarity. Close — but a name should feel like an opening, not a subtraction.

Setu

06

A bridge between problems and solutions. We liked the metaphor — but the answer wanted to sound like a question.

SETTLED

A.M.A

Ask Me Anything.

/n. an invitation, always open.

WHY IT FITS

It captures our essence.
It uses our initials. And it reflects our vision — to make life easier by making the answer a conversation away.

A Ask — the door is open.

M
Me — a person
answers, not a portal.

A Anything — from a landing page to a live product.

The mark.

The primary mark is a wordmark. Set in Instrument Serif, italic M. The full stops are load-bearing — they do the work of a pause, an invitation to speak.

A.M.A

01 · On ink

02 · On amber

03 · On paper

Give it room to breathe.

CLEAR SPACE

Reserve a margin equal to the cap-height of the A on all sides. Nothing — image, headline, or edge — enters that space.

MINIMUM SIZE

Below these sizes the italic M loses its swing. When in doubt, go bigger.

DON'T

Don't skew or slant.

Don't respace the letters.

Don't recolour off-palette.

Don't redraw in a sans.

Warm ink, amber, paper.

A three-part palette. Ink for weight, Amber for warmth, Paper for calm.
Two greys keep it usable in interface work.

We sound like a good reply.

A.M.A talks the way a trusted friend answers a question at a table — quickly, warmly, without jargon, without the sales voice. Confidence comes from knowing the answer, not from turning up the volume.

Clear

Short sentences. Real nouns. No "leverage", no "solutions".

Warm

Talk to one person. Use "you". Sound like a human wrote it — because one did.

Confident

State the answer. Skip the hedge. If we don't know, say so — then find out.

Playful

One good line beats a paragraph. A little wink — never a joke about the reader.

WE SAY

"Send us the problem. We'll send back a plan by Friday."

"Ship the small version. Fix it in daylight."

"Ask us anything. That's literally the name."

WE DON'T SAY

"Leveraging AI-driven synergies to unlock verticals."

"World-class, best-in-class, next-gen platform."

"Please kindly find attached, per our last email."

Where it lives.

A first read for how A.M.A shows up: a business card, a site header, a signature. The rest follows the same three-part rhythm — paper, ink, a moment of amber.
